COMMENTARY

August witnessed a surge across all regional stock indices as investor sentiment improved and the US stock market continued its upward trend. The S&P Pan Arab Investable Index was up by 5.31% (YTD -10.61%), and the Dow Jones MENA Index gained 5.59% (YTD -10.86%). Moreover, the Dow Jones Islamic Market MENA Index had also gone up by 5.14% (YTD -5.35%). On the other hand, the Arab Bank MENA Fund followed suit, going up by 3.57% (YTD -8.48%). In addition, the IAB Islamic MENA Fund, recorded gains of 1.46% (YTD -6.33%). Meanwhile, The IAB MENA Feeder Fund gained 1.42% (YTD -6.87%).

After months of underperformance, the Dubai Financial Market was the region's top gainer in August, jumping by 9.49% (YTD -18.79%). The Kuwaiti Premier Market Index, which went up by 8.11% (YTD -16.08%), was the second best performer. Meanwhile the Amman Stock Exchange index recorded the only retreat in the region after shedding 0.52% (YTD, -13.31%). In other regional markets, the Egyptian EGX30 surged by 7.23% (YTD -18.59%), the Bahrain index went up by 7.00% (YTD -14.24%), and the Saudi Tadawul index gained 6.45% (YTD -5.35%), as the Oman MSM30 index posted a 5.71% gain (YTD -5.26%). The Qatari index and Abu Dhabi index rounded up the regional indices with gains of 5.09% (YTD -5.57%) and 4.98% (YTD -10.96) respectively.

In other news, Saudi Arabia's Ministry of Human Resources and Social Development announced that it will begin a 70% Saudization drive for 9 activities in the wholesale and retail outlets. This announcement was swiftly followed by a decree to localize 20% of all private sector engineering jobs.

Meanwhile, the Arab Monetary Fund issued its Arab Economic Outlook Report in which it predicted a 4.7% contraction in the economies of Arab oil-exporting countries in 2020. The contraction is a result of COVID-19 lockdown measures and the substantially lower oil prices witnessed.

In the U.S., major indices have gone up for another month driven by a rally in technology stocks despite the country's continued rise in COVID-19 cases and deaths which lead the world. The S&P 500 surged by 7.01% (YTD 8.34%) while the Dow Jones also jumped by 7.57% (YTD -0.38%) to turn nearly flat for the year. Meanwhile in Europe, indices were unanimously up with the German DAX leading the way, going up by 5.13% (YTD -2.29%) while the French CAC 40 and the FTSE 100 followed suit by gaining 3.42% (YTD -17.24%) and 1.12% (YTD -20.93%) respectively. In the Far East, the Nikkei Index gained 6.59% (YTD -2.18%), while the Shanghai Composite Index was up 2.59% (YTD 11.22%) and the Hang Seng shot up by 2.37% (YTD -10.69%).

Similar to populations' attitude to imposed lockdowns and restrictions, it seems investors are also suffering from COVID-19 related fatigue as its developments no longer dominate market movements. Instead, investors have turned to other news to dictate their market movements going into 2021. We have accordingly been looking at attractively-valued names which have been beaten-down as a result of the virus which have not yet achieved their fair value. We continue to be risk-averse, fundamentally-driven and value seeking to offer the best risk-return tradeoff to our investors as we continue to navigate our portfolios in these unprecedented times.
