COMMENTARY

MENA markets came crashing down in May after 6 straight months of gains as global equity markets were rocked by historical inflation levels and the war in Ukraine. High oil prices, which kept MENA markets immune from the downturn, were no longer enough to prop up MENA indices amid global turmoil. The S&P Pan Arab Investable Index came crashing down by 6.65% (YTD 8.35%), and the Dow Jones MENA Index fell by 6.76% (YTD 8.66%). The Arab Bank MENA Fund recorded a narrower loss, falling 3.37% (YTD 2.29%). The Dow Jones Islamic Market MENA Index was also down significantly, recording the highest loss among our benchmark indices by falling 7.37% (YTD 8.50%). The IIAB MENA Fund though only shed 2.12% (YTD 1.18%). The IIAB MENA Feeder Fund consequently lost 2.23% (YTD 0.92%).

With the exception of the Jordanian ASE index, which was lifted by mining stocks and recorded a gain of 2.68% (YTD 16.70%), all MENA indices were down for the month of May. The Dubai Financial Market was the biggest loser, losing an incredible 10.01% (YTD 4.74%) followed closely by the Egyptian Stock Exchange which lost 8.13% (YTD -15.06%). The Kuwait Premier Market Index, the Bahraini Index, and the Saudi Arabian TASI came in afterwards, losing 6.79% (YTD 13.57%), 6.58% (YTD 6.87%) and 5.91% (YTD 14.54%) respectively. The list was rounded up by the Qatari Index, the Omani Stock Exchange and the Abu Dhabi index, falling by 4.94% (YTD 11.13%), 1.02% (YTD -0.33%) and 0.26% (YTD 18.45%) respectively.

Global capital markets were mostly up during the month after a brutal April downturn. In the U.S., the S&P 500 Index was largely flat, going up by 0.01% (YTD -13.30%) while the Dow Jones inched up by 0.04% (YTD -9.21%). In Europe, it was a mixed bag. The French CAC 40 Index shed 0.99% (YTD -9.57%), the German DAX gained 2.06% (YTD -9.42%) and the FTSE 100 gained 0.84% (YTD 3.02%). Asia on the other hand was unanimously up for the month. The Nikkei index was up 1.61% (YTD -5.25%), while the Hang Seng gained 1.54% (YTD -8.47%) and the Shanghai Composite surged 4.57% (YTD -12.46%).

During May, Federal Reserve officials agreed at their gathering that they need to raise interest rates in half-point steps at their next two meetings, continuing an aggressive set of moves that would leave them with flexibility to shift gears later if needed. While highlighting the strong commitment and determination of all policy makers to restore price stability, the minutes of the May 3-4 meeting showed officials attentive to financial conditions as they prepare to raise rates further. This came after the Federal Reserve raised its benchmark overnight interest rate by half a percentage point, the biggest jump in 22 years, and the US central bank's chief made an appeal to Americans struggling with high inflation to be patient while officials take the hard measures to bring it under control. In a widely expected move, the Fed set its target federal funds rate to a range between 0.75% and 1% in a unanimous decision.

In MENA, the president of the United Arab Emirates Sheikh Khalifa Bin Zayed Al Nahyan has passed away and his younger brother Sheikh Mohammed Bin Zayed has succeeded him at the helm of OPEC's third biggest oil producer. Sheikh Khalifa who steered the Arab country through the global financial crisis and oversaw its rapid economic transformation, had been in office since 2004. He was 73. Sheikh Khalifa was also ruler of Abu Dhabi, the largest and wealthiest of the seven sheikhdoms that comprise the UAE.

MENA equity markets have shown their resilience in comparison to global equity markets in the first five months of the year. While equities around the globe spiraled downwards, MENA equities were propped up by higher oil prices which lifted energy and petchem companies, in addition to broader market gains in anticipation of higher government spending due to increased revenues from oil.

We continue to be opportunistic buyers of MENA equities especially in light of recent declines. We believe the relative higher oil prices will persist supporting GCC government spending in the intermediate term. This in no doubt will have a positive effect on the broader economy of GCC countries.
