COMMENTARY

MENA equity markets cratered for the second straight month to erase all gains made since the beginning of the year to finish the month of June in the red YTD. The S&P Pan Arab Investable Index dived by 8.93% (YTD -1.33%). Likewise, the Dow Jones MENA Index fell by 8.78% (YTD -0.88%). The Arab Bank MENA Fund on the other hand shed 2.46% (YTD -0.23%). The Dow Jones Islamic Market MENA Index did not fare any better, shedding 9.77% (YTD -2.10%). The IIAB MENA Fund has duly dropped, though by a smaller 1.87% (YTD -0.72%). The IIAB MENA Feeder Fund consequently fell by 1.97% (YTD -1.07%).

The region's capital markets were all down during the month with the exception of the Omani Stock Exchange and the Jordanian ASE which were up by 0.16% (YTD -0.17%) and 0.14% (YTD 16.87%) respectively. On the losers' side, the Saudi Arabian TASI was at the front, shedding 10.82% (YTD 2.14%) during the month of June, followed closely by the Egyptian Stock Exchange which fell 9.11% (YTD -22.79%). Afterwards it was the Abu Dhabi index, the Qatari Index and the Kuwait Premier Market index which lost 6.76% (YTD 10.44%), 5.64% (YTD 4.86%) and 4.99% (YTD 7.91%) respectively. Finally, the list was rounded up by the Bahraini Index and the Dubai Financial Market indices which were down by 4.22% (YTD 2.36%) and 3.70% (YTD 0.86%).

Global capital markets were also mostly down as a combination of high inflation, tighter monetary policies and the Ukraine war continued to cast a dark shadow on their performances. In the U.S., the S&P 500 Index crashed by 8.39% (YTD -20.58%) while the Dow Jones fell 6.71% (YTD -15.31%). In Europe, all major indices were down. The French CAC 40 Index shed 8.44% (YTD -17.20%), the German DAX was down by 11.15% (YTD -19.52%) and the FTSE 100 lost 5.76% (YTD -2.92%). Asia on the other hand was mostly up for the month of June. The Nikkei index fell by 3.25% (YTD -8.33%), while the Hang Seng gained 2.08% (YTD -6.57%) and the Shanghai Composite was up 6.66% (YTD -6.63%).

In marquee global news during the month of June, the Federal Reserve raised interest rates by 75 basis points -- the biggest increase since 1994 -- and Chair Jerome Powell signaled another big move next month, intensifying a fight to contain rampant inflation. The Fed intensified its effort to cool prices by lifting the target range for the federal funds rate to 1.5% to 1.75%. Powell said another 75 basis-point hike, or a 50 basis-point move, was likely at the next meeting of policy makers.

Moreover, Russia defaulted on its foreign-currency sovereign debt for the first time in a century, the culmination of ever-tougher Western sanctions that shut down payment routes to overseas creditors. For months, the country found paths around the penalties imposed after the Kremlin's invasion of Ukraine. But the grace period on about USD100 million of snared interest payments due May 27 expired, a deadline considered an event of default if missed. In more upbeat news, the International Monetary Fund said the US economy is likely to slow in 2022 and 2023 but will narrowly avoid a recession as the Federal Reserve implements its rate-tightening plan to curb inflation.

In regional news, the Saudi Central Bank placed about SAR50 billion (USD13 billion) as time deposits with commercial lenders, seeking to ease the worst liquidity crunch in over a decade. The intervention started just before the US Federal Reserve's interest-rate hike this month and consisted of money provided to banks at a discount to the three-month Saudi Interbank Offered Rate.

In corporate news, Dubai business park operator Tecom Group drew orders worth USD9.63 billion for its initial public offering, the latest Middle East listing to attract strong investor demand amid a boom in regional share sales. Dubai's government sold 625 million shares at 2.67 dirhams each, raising USD454 million, according to a statement on Monday. The price implies a dividend yield of about 6%.

We continue to be prudent in our fundamentally based approach, searching for deep value in the names we acquire and holding relatively high levels of cash in order to offer our investors the best returns in the long term and downside protection instead of searching for short-term gains and enduring higher risks.
