COMMENTARY

It seems that the coronavirus news have been relegated to a mere footnote since, despite rising infection rates, equity markets have rallied in December to finish the year strongly. The S&P Pan Arab Investable Index gained 1.09% (YTD -3.58%), and the Dow Jones MENA Index was up by 1.14% (YTD -3.92%). Consequently, the Arab Bank MENA Fund outperformed its benchmark indices, gaining 3.45% (YTD -0.52%). On the Sharia-compliant front, the Dow Jones Islamic Market MENA Index also posted gains rising by 1.12% (YTD 2.58%). As a result, the IAB MENA Fund gained 2.36% (YTD -0.32%). Consequently, the IAB MENA Feeder Fund was up by 2.33% (YTD -1.03%).

Most of the region's capital markets recorded gains during the month. The Jordanian Stock Exchange topped the list of gainers by surging 5.32% (YTD -8.70%). On the other hand the Egyptian Stock Exchange dropped 0.90% (YTD -22.32%) followed by the Saudi Arabian TASI index which lost 0.66% (YTD 3.58%), marking the region's sole losers for December. Capital markets that recorded gains however were rounded by the Dubai Financial Market which gained 2.99% (YTD -9.87%) followed by the Doha Stock Exchange and the Abu Dhabi Stock Exchange which gained 1.69% (YTD 0.10%) and 1.62% (YTD -0.60%) respectively. The list was smoothed up by the Bahraini Market and Kuwait Premier Market, edging up by 0.83% (-7.48%) and 0.71% (YTD -13.62%) respectively, while the Omani Capital Market inched up by 0.42% (YTD -7.48%).

Global capital markets have also finished the year strong, with major indices posting unanimous gains. In the U.S. the S&P 500 Index continued its push to new historical highs, gaining 3.71% (YTD 16.26%) in December. The Dow Jones meanwhile was up by 3.27% (YTD 7.25%). Similarly, exchanges in Europe also witnessed gains despite dire coronavirus infections. The French CAC 40 Index recorded monthly gains of 0.60% (YTD -7.14%), and the German DAX was up by 3.22% (YTD 3.55%). The FTSE 100 also shot up by 3.10% (YTD -14.34%) buoyed by the finalization of a Brexit trade deal with the EU. In Asia, the Hang Seng advanced by 3.38% (YTD -3.40%), and the Shanghai Composite was up by 2.40% (YTD 13.87%). Finally the Nikkei was up by 3.82% (YTD 16.01%) recording the highest year-end close since 1989.

During the month of December Dubai announced an expansionary budget for 2021. Dubai's government expects to spend AED57.1 billion (USD15.5 billion) next year as it tries to mitigate the impact of the coronavirus. More spending was needed as the United Arab Emirates will likely suffer a deeper economic contraction in 2020 than previously estimated, hurt by disruptions caused by the coronavirus pandemic and lower oil prices. Gross domestic product in the Arab world's second-largest economy is estimated to shrink about 6% in 2020, compared with a previous forecast for a decline of 5.2%, the central bank said in its quarterly review.

Also in Saudi Arabia the spending plans for next year would be expansionary, as it leans more heavily on government-controlled funds to make up for cuts to a finance ministry budget battered by a decline in oil prices and the coronavirus pandemic. The kingdom will stick to its plan to cut spending by 7.3% in 2021 after its deficit widened dramatically this year, according to the annual budget statement.

In a year where equity markets were expected to be battered by the coronavirus' global spread and associated lockdowns an extraordinary thing happened. Quantitative easing measures enacted by governments including significantly slashing interest rates and pumping stimulus money into economies limited equity market losses and in some cases pushed them to new all-time highs. This presented an opportunity for our fund to take advantage of mispriced stocks aided by our ample cash reserves to end the year only slightly down YoY.
