COMMENTARY

For the fifth straight month, MENA equity indices recorded substantial gains driven by the heavyweight Saudi index as the inflation in commodities' prices played in favor of the petro chemical heavy Tadawul index. The S&P Pan Arab Investable Index surged 2.08% (YTD 16.06%), and the Dow Jones MENA Index was up by 2.25% (YTD 16.53%). Similarly, the Arab Bank MENA Fund was up by 2.26% (YTD 5.86%). The Dow Jones Islamic Market MENA Index mimicked its conventional equivalents and even surpassed them on a YTD basis, gaining 1.74% (YTD 17.14%). The IIAB MENA Fund outperformed its benchmark this month as it gained 1.95% (YTD 3.36%). The IIAB MENA Feeder Fund consequently was up by 1.95% (YTD 3.22%).

Most of the region's capital markets were all up during the month of April. The Jordanian ASE Index was the region's top performer gaining 8.08% (YTD 13.66%) on a strong performance by the mining & extraction sector. The Saudi Arabian TASI surged by 4.92% (YTD 21.74%), but it was the Dubai Financial Market Index which led the Gulf region this month after gaining 5.47% (YTD 16.39%). Meanwhile, the Kuwait Premier Market which gained 2.72% (YTD 21.85%) and remains the region's top performer so far this year. The Abu Dhabi index was up by 1.33% (YTD 18.77%), and the Qatari Index rounded the list of gainers after rising by 0.43% (YTD 16.90%). At the other end, the Bahraini index dropped 0.84% (YTD 14.41%), and the Omani stock exchange shed 1.11% (YTD 0.70%). Meanwhile Egypt's struggles continued. The Egyptian Stock Exchange was the biggest loser this month after declining by 1.77% and remains the region's worst performing exchange after declining 7.54% so far this year.

The picture was different at the global capital markets level. In the U.S., the S&P 500 Index dropped 8.80% (YTD -13.31%) while the Dow Jones shed 4.91% (YTD -9.25%). In Europe, all major indices experienced a negative month with the exception of the FTSE 100, which gained 0.38% (YTD 2.17%). The French CAC 40 Index declined 1.89% (YTD -8.66%), and the German DAX dropped 2.20% (YTD -11.25%). Asia followed a similar path to major indices in the West. The Nikkei index shed 3.50% (YTD -6.75%), while the Hang Seng declined 4.13% (YTD -9.87%) and the Shanghai Composite slid by 6.31% (YTD -16.28%).

In April news, the International Monetary Fund slashed its world growth forecast by the most since the early months of the Covid-19 pandemic, and projected even faster inflation, after Russia invaded Ukraine and China renewed virus lockdowns. Global expansion will slow to 3.6% in 2022, down from a forecast of 4.4% in January before the war, the IMF said in an update to its World Economic Outlook. That compares with 6.1% growth in 2021. The institution also lowered its projection for 2023 to 3.6% from a prior 3.8%. The fund sees inflation for this year at 5.7% in advanced economies and 8.7% in emerging and developing countries, significantly higher than just a few months ago.

Moreover, the World Bank has also cut its forecast for global economic expansion this year on Russia's invasion of Ukraine and is planning to mobilize a funding package bigger than the Covid-19 response for nations to deal with various resulting and ongoing crises. The Washington-based institution has lowered its estimate for global growth in 2022 to 3.2% from a January prediction of 4.1%.

In the US, Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell outlined his most aggressive approach to taming inflation to date, potentially endorsing two or more half percentage-point interest-rate increases while describing the labor market as overheated. A rate increase in May, following the Fed's decision to lift rates from near zero by a quarter percentage point last month, would mark the first time since 2006 that the central bank increased its policy rate at back-to-back meetings. A half-point increase would be the first such move since 2000.

In regional news, the UAE's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) for 2021 has broken international economic expectations, registering the highest rate in the region of AED 1.489 trillion. The Federal Competitiveness and Statistics Centre announced that the UAE's GDP at constant prices has achieved a growth of 3.8%, exceeding the estimates and expectations of international institutions, which expected the growth of the country's GDP in 2021 to post 2.1%.

On the other hand, Dubai's main power and water company raised USD6.1 billion in the world's second biggest initial public offering this year, defying a global slowdown in listings. The government sold 9 billion shares in Dubai Electricity & Water Authority at 2.48 dirhams each, the top end of the range. That gives it a market value of USD33.8 billion and makes it one of the world's biggest utilities.

In energy news, Saudi Arabia raised oil prices for customers in all regions as Russia's invasion of Ukraine continues to reverberate through markets. State producer Saudi Aramco increased its Arab Light crude for next month's shipments to Asia to USD9.35 a barrel above the benchmark it uses. That's a jump of USD4.40 a barrel from April, when the key grade was already at a record. Oil has soared to more than USD100 a barrel in the wake of Moscow's attack, which has roiled financial markets across the world. Many buyers are avoiding cargoes from Russia, despite them being offered at steep discounts.

MENA Equity markets have continued to roll on the back of higher oil prices in spite of any headwinds including the war in Ukraine, spiraling inflation and higher projected interest rates. We continue to be bullish on MENA equities and remain opportunistic buyers of blue chip names and sellers on strength in order to monetize gains for investors in our funds.
